

Simplifying construction assessment

Kier is leading on an initiative with Build UK, a representative organisation for the UK construction industry, to develop a common assessment for the construction industry. The new assessment is being developed in partnership with other construction contractors and will replace current systems, which supply chain partners tell us they find complex, bureaucratic and repetitive.

As a committed member of Build UK, Kier has supported the development of the new industry pre-qualification standard from the very beginning. Our success to date really highlights what can be achieved when the industry works together to reduce cost and bureaucracy throughout the supply chain.
